Intellectual Disability: Definition, Classification, and Systems of Supports (2010)

— “The 11th edition of the AAIDD definition manual continues our progress in both describing a person with an intellectual disability in several dimensions, not solely based on IQ or adaptive behavior, and integrating further the concept of supports into the definition and practice. Refinements based on an extensive feedback system, both in the field and in peer-reviewed literature, are incorporated making the 11th edition the most advanced of its kind.”

From Sad to Glad: Kline on Depression (1974)

— “Do you feel burned out, tense, anxious, frightened, irritable, turned off? You’re not alone, and you don’t have to suffer anymore. Depression can be a chemical imbalance that you can treat with drugs. Dr. Kline, a pioneer in the biochemical treatment of depression, explains the remarkably simple and successful approach that has led thousands to more joyful lives— simply, quickly, and without analysis.”

The Horse Boy (2009)

—“The Horse boy is the dramatic and heart-warming story of that impossible adventure. In Mongolia, the family found undreamed of landscapes and people, unbearable setbacks, and advances beyond their wildest dreams. This is a deeply moving, one of a kind story— of a family willing to go to the ends of the earth to help their son, Rowan, who was diagnosed with autism; and a boy learning to connect with the world for the first time.”

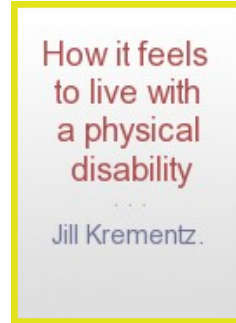

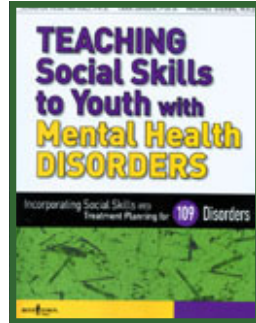

—About the Library—

The library is a collaborative effort between BabyNet/South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control, the Center for Disability Resources, the South Carolina Department of Disabilities and Special Needs, and the University of South Carolina School of Medicine Library. The CDR Library consists of books, videos, brochures, and audiotapes covering a variety of disability-related topics. The Center for Disability Resources Library is located within the University of South Carolina School of Medicine Library on Garners Ferry Road.

Spotlight on These New Additions...

“If we encounter a man of rare intellect, we should ask him what books he reads.”

~Ralph Waldo Emerson~

Teaching Social Skills to Youth with Mental Health Disorders (2009)

—“ In this book, you'll find an introduction to the DSM-IV-TR and other mental health assessment and evaluation tools and how to individualize treatment plans while considering children's developmental, cultural, behavioral, emotional, social, genetic, and biological variables. The authors provide a series of charts that list the social skills that caregivers and treatment providers might target for each of more than a hundred diagnosis. common for children and adolescents”

How it feels to live with a Physical Disability (1992)

—“ This book is a compilation of stories from 12 young people ranging in age from 6 to 16. Each youth has a different disability, as a result of birth or an accident. They speak with the author about their problems and coping skills with decidedly upbeat attitudes. They express how they cope with depression, public scrutiny, and medical treatment with confidence and maturity. Each chapter tells the story of one of these special children.”

Anna's Silent World (1977)

— “Born deaf, six year old Anna has learned to speak with and understand people around her. Offering love and support, her family and friends watch Anna lead a full live and active life. Alongside beautiful black and white photos, you too can watch Anna as she experiences some new things! “
