The Library's Latest: A Note from the Coordinator

Greetings Everyone!

*It's been a slow month
in terms of circulation, here. Still, it's been busy in other ways. I particularly enjoyed the COCA/CDR meeting
that we had mid-month.
As usual, Karen Irick and Leslie Pyper did a wonderful job organizing everything!*

I would like to point out that the South Carolina Autism Society graciously donated the autism-related books featured in last month's *newsletter, and that Carol Neiderhauser did an amazing job in facilitating the gift, which provided us both new and duplicate titles to boost our autism spectrum disorder collection.

(See back article)*

Finally, I would like to announce that the new shipment of CDR Library pamphlets has arrived; so, if anyone would like to request a bundle of pamphlets for distributing in displays and/or mailouts, just drop me an e-mail or

Mental Health Facts

People who have major depression and anxiety disorders are significantly (60 percent) less likely to relapse if they exercise regularly—and continue exercising over time—than if they take medication alone. (Mayo Clinic, 2003)

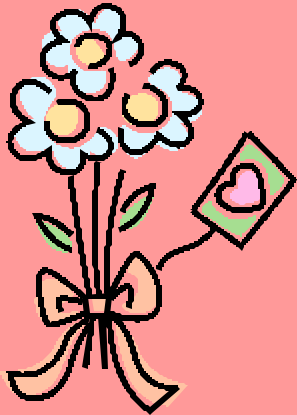

About 13 percent of children between 9 and 17 years old have an anxiety disorder. (USSG, 1999)

South Carolina Autism Society

Together We Can Solve The Puzzle

South Carolina Autism Society Donates Materials for Second Year in a Row

(Columbia, SC – April 2006) – For the second year, the South Carolina Autism Society has donated materials about autism spectrum disorders to public libraries in all of the state's 46 counties.

The society donated five books and two DVDs to the libraries this month with support from the South Carolina Developmental Disabilities Council and Autism Speaks, a national organization dedicated to increasing awareness about autism and funding research for a cure.

Autism Speaks provided copies of the DVD, Autism: The Hidden Epidemic?, for the libraries. The DVD is a compilation of NBC News special reports broadcast in 2005.

The Autism Society is providing materials to the libraries in April, designated as Autism Awareness Month by Governor Mark Sanford.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control puts the number of those affected by autism spectrum disorders at 1 in 166 children and adults. This means about 24,000 South Carolinians are affected.

Autism develops early in life and affects the individual's ability to communicate, learn and to interact with others. Unusual behaviors are common. There are no proven causes, although many possible causes are being investigated. Early identification and intervention are critical.

The library materials address autism spectrum disorders in general and issues of particular interest to families who have loved ones with autism. One book is written for children in English and Spanish. About 160 copies of a general book about autism were donated to the county library systems for each of their branches.

In April 2005, the society donated nine books to each of the county systems with support from the Developmental Disabilities Council.

Autism Speaks was founded in 2005 by Suzanne and Bob Wright, who have a grandson with autism. Bob Wright is Vice Chairman and Executive Officer, General Electric, and Chairman and CEO, NBC Universal.

For more information about autism and Autism Awareness Month activities, visit the society's website at www.scautism.org. The South Carolina Autism Society is the only statewide nonprofit organization that advocates for the needs of children and adults with autism spectrum disorders.
